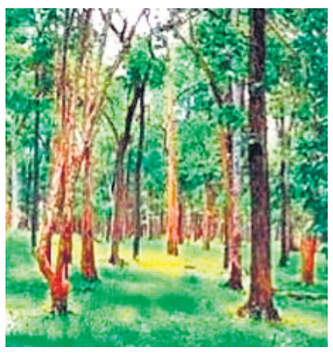
ESZ: State ready for fight, counts on Central support

To move SC citing special circumstances and population density

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi/T'Puram

IN a major reprieve to the state government, the Centre has offered support in getting an exemption for Kerala from the Supreme Court order making one-km eco-sensitive zone mandatory. When the matter comes up before the apex court, the Centre will take a stand favouring the concerns raised by various state governments, including Kerala. Union Minister for Environment, Forest and Climate Change, Bhupender Yadav, has promised support for the state's concerns regarding ESZ, said Forest Minister A K Saseendran after meeting him in New Delhi on Thursday.

Speaking after the meeting, he said that the state will soon move SC seeking to exempt it from 1 km rule restriction and to exclude human settled areas, agricultural lands and public institutions. Saseendran said the Union Minister promised that the Centre will look into the concerns raised by Kerala and other states. "The union minister has taken a positive approach towards our demands. Apart from Kerala many other states, especially the north eastern states, have raised similar concerns. The Centre will take a favourable approach before the Supreme Court," Saseendran said.



Meanwhile the Union minister will visit the state on August 12 in connection with the World Elephant Day celebration. In a memorandum to the Union minister, Kerala requested that a final notification should be issued as per the revised proposals submitted by the state government.

Considering the special circumstances and population density of Kerala, steps should be taken to exempt the state from SC directions. The state also demanded that necessary legal and legislative steps may be taken to amend the 2011 guidelines of the Forest Ministry declaration on ESZ to protect the interests of the public and farmers. It has also pointed out that the state is taking necessary measures to prevent human-wildlife conflict. "The Union minister said that issues raised by all states will be addressed before implementing the SC order. He said that states can approach the SC on this," said Saseendran. Kerala is the first state to hold a meeting with the Union minister in this regard.

The state government has already decided to approach the Supreme Court with a petition on the ESZ issue. However a decision on whether to file a modification petition or a review petition will be taken after the Advocate General holds talks with the forest principal secretary, principal chief conservator of forests and the state counsel before the apex court. The Supreme Court had on June 3, pronounced a verdict that a one-km eco-sensitive zone is mandatory around wildlife sanctuaries and national parks.

The order has invited major political debate and public protests in Kerala. Recently the assembly passed a unanimous resolution in this regard. It's in this backdrop that the state forest minister took up the issue with the Union Government.

Samastha sees Jama'at plot to widen rift with CIC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Kozhikode

SUNNI Yuvajana Sangham (SYS) leader Abdul Hameed Faizi has hinted that Jama'at-e-Islami is trying to intensify the rift between Samastha Kerala Jam-Iyyathul Ulema and the Confederation of Islamic Colleges (CIC) by promoting the latter.

In a Facebook video, Faizi said that Jama'at is showering praises on the CIC while coming strongly against Samastha. "CIC is one among the many educational systems under the Samastha. It is intriguing that the Jama'at is praising one and finding fault with the other," he said. Faizi sees the Facebook posts of Ilyas Moulavi, a prominent figure in one of the educational institutions of the Jama'at, as an example of double standards of the organisation.

Samastha is planning to bring in some stipulations for the educational institutions under the organisation. Moulavi says such directions are impractical and amounts to blocking the intellectual pursuits of students. At the same time, he has high opinion of the CIC system. According to Faizi, this is nothing but doublespeak.

Faizi also blasted 'Jama'at ideologue' O Abdulla, who also aired his opposition to Samastha's stipulations. Abdulla had objected to Samastha's decision to keep away books on bid'ah (deviant sects) from the libraries of its educational institutions.

Samastha had announced that 'deviant' ideologies of Mujahids and the Jama'at should not find a place in the books in its libraries.

Abdulla contended that it is not correct to brand some sects as bid'ah or deviation from real Islam without proper studies. Faizi said Abdulla too targeted Samastha while praising the CIC. In the video, Faizi has also noted that the 'Madyamam' daily carried the article of CIC secretary Abdul Hakkeem Faizi on Eid day. By citing all these examples, the Sunni leader is indirectly hinting that there is a secret pact between CIC and Jama'at.

It may be recalled that the CIC had withdrew its proposed amendments to the Constitution after strong objections from Samastha.The main charge against CIC was that it paved the way for the backdoor entry of Mujahis and Jama'at ideologies into the Sunni institutions.

After the truce, the Sunni organisation went a step further and decided to frame regulations governing all educational institutions under the organisation.

Man arrested for attacking mother

T'Puram: A 42-year-old man who allegedly attacked his 63-year-old-mother using an iron rod was arrested by the Palode police on Thursday. Santhulal, of Kuruppuzha near Palode, attacked his mother Chandrika, over a property dispute. The police said Santhulal attacked his mother demanding more share of the ancestral property. Chandrika had recently given 60 cents of land from her one-acre property to Santhulal. The rest of the land was to be divided among her two other children. However, Santhulal has been insisting on more share of land. On Tuesday he entered into a verbal duel with his mother over the matter. When she declined his demand, Santhulal attacked her. Hearing her cries, the local residents informed the police. Following this, Santhulal was taken into custody and booked for attempt to murder.

Plea in HC against IPS conferment to retd cop

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Kochi

A petition has been filed before the Kerala High Court against the reported move to confer IPS on retired police officer Abdul Rasheed who is allegedly involved in several criminal cases. The petition stated that the move is in violation of the Supreme Court ruling.

The appeal filed by G Vipinan, of Kollam, said the officer had been in police custody for more than 90 days for allegedly attempting to murder journalist B Unnithan in Kollam.

Several petitions challenging his discharge from the case are pending before the court. Vipinan also cited the Apex Court judgement that "a candidate to be recruited to the police service must be worthy of confidence and must be a person of utmost rectitude and must have impeccable character and integrity. A person having criminal antecedents will not fit in this category."

Rashid managed to get an integrity certificate from the state despite the Union Public Service Commission (UPSC) ruling him unfit two times.
