Travellers, lounges, neat segregation of arrival and departure... it's easy to mistake Bhopal's Kamalapati (erstwhile Habibganj) railway station for an airport.

India's first 'privatised' railway station — built on PPP mode — cost Rs 450 crore (Rs 100 crore for the new station and Rs 350 crore for shopping malls, hotels and office complexes) and was completed without suspending operations on this section of the busy Delhi-Chennai trunk route.

The result: with separate routes for arriving and departing passengers, there's no chaos, no shoving and jostling.

Inaugurated by PM Modi on June 20, the Sir Mokshagundam Visvesvaraya Terminal in east Bengaluru is Bengaluru's first airport-like train station, with centralised air-conditioning, state-of-the-art waiting halls, including one for women with digital real-time passenger info system, food courts and shops. It sports a façade on the lines of Kempegowda International Airport.

At present, 16 pairs of trains are operational from the Rs 314-crore terminal spanning 5,930sqm but it can accommodate 50 trains a day and a footfall of about 50,000.

In Bengaluru, this is the third railway coaching terminal (where trains originate/terminate their trips) after KSR Bengaluru City and Yeshwantpur stations. While KSR, which is part of the Mysuru line, has been operational since 1882, Yeshwantpur was built in 1892.

The third terminal at Byappanahalli was sanctioned in 2015-16 and is expected to help SWR operate more long-distance trains from Bengaluru. It is the first greenfield project in India where Indian railways constructed a world-class terminal. South Western Railway officials said there was no major demand for trains from Bengaluru till late 1990s as most were limited to southern states. Post the IT boom in 2000s, there has been huge demand for more trains especially to the north but tracks/stations in Bengaluru reached almost a saturation point. This has resulted in the need for more terminals to run additional trains.

The waiting room has USB, laptop charging facilities and TVs. Platforms are connected with a 7.5m wide foot-over bridge and two subways adorned with paintings of Bengaluru landmarks. Water and energy management measures are in place, including a 4-lakh-litre water recycling plant.

India's first luxury hotel and convention centre to come up on the public-private partnership model is built atop the concourse of the Gandhinagar railway station, minutes from the Mahatma Mandir Convention and Exhibition Centre that hosts the Vibrant Gujarat Summit among other national and international events.

Operated by the Leela Group, the Rs 780 crore, 318-room hotel rises to 65m (11 floors), its three towers arranged in a triquetra. It is a column-free building, constructed in the economical space frame of 99 metres over a railway platform. Gandhinagar railway station has seven busy tracks.

The Gujarat government has a 74% stake in The Leela, Gandhinagar, while Indian Railway Stations Development Corporation has 26%. A special-purpose vehicle — Gandhinagar Railway and Urban Development Corporation (GARUD) — owns the hotel.

Since operations began on July 17 2021, the concourse-hotel has been catering to a mix of corporate guests at any given time, mainly from companies with units in Kadi, Kalol, Mehsana, and Dehgam and the surrounding Gujarat Industrial Development Corporation estates.

GANDHINAGAR | GUJARAT

The hotel project was conceptualised in 2016, with the GIFT (Gujarat International Finance Tec) City in focus as a fintech hub. "The government has built a hotel on the PPP model with the operator's specifications. It is like bringing two schools together. We learn from government processes, and they learn the subtleties of our industry from us," said Anand.

In January 2017, Modi had laid the foundation stone of the project. "I have always wanted railway stations to be of top quality, not only facilitating travel but also boosting commerce and hospitality," Modi had said ahead of the hotel's inauguration. "One such effort has been made in Gandhinagar."

No sign of visa, students headed to Canada in a fix

Hemali.Chhaphia@timesgroup.com

Mumbai: In a rude shock to tens of thousands of freshmen keen on flying out for an education to Canada, their visas are still to come. Universities that begin their academic year in early September have asked candidates to either be on campus by then or defer their admissions.

These are students headed to top Canadian institutions such as McGill University, University of Toronto, University of British Columbia; they have paid a full year's fee of Rs 40-50 lakh, partial charges for housing and even met other requirements to apply under the Student Direct Stream, a fast-track route promising visas in less than 2 weeks. International counsellors peg the number of such students at 35,000-50,000.

The Student Direct Stream comes at a price: apart from paying the full year's tuition, students must deposit an additional sum of Cad $10,000, take the IELTS and undergo medical examination.

"Since the last few years, this has been the most preferred route recommended by universities and the Canadian international visa section (IRCC). This year has been a calamity. The Canadian government and universities are not giving any answers on why visas have not been processed. There is so much anguish among parents and students are anxious," said international education counsellor Pratibha Jain.

Students have booked flight tickets, registered themselves for their first-and second-semester courses and requested universities to offer online courses. But most universities have turned down their request or have not responded at all.

Request for online courses turned down by most univs

"Canadian universities should allow students to join online this Fall 2022, so that they can progress to on-campus classes whenever they reach campus. This way their education will not be jeopardised. All Canadian universities offered this solution in 2020 and 2021. Hence, there is precedence and the technical infrastructure in place. Choices of subjects in January semester 2 are dependent on completing prerequisites in Fall Semester 1," added Jain.

Parents TOI spoke to said they have formed university-wise groups and had written to their respective institutions as also to the Canadian Bureau for International Education requesting that visas be expedited and online classes be offered.

"While universities are asking us to defer admissions, I feel this is not a solution as several courses are not offered in January and there will be a cascading delay on their graduation," said a Mumbai-based parent.

Hold camps for booster doses at stns, religious sites: Centre to states

New Delhi: With just 17 per cent of eligible people receiving the precaution dose of COVID-19 vaccines till August 15, Union Health Minister Manu Sukh Mandaviya appealed to states on Tuesday to organise vaccination camps at public places such as railway stations, airports and religious sites to boost the coverage.

Mandaviya, who interacted with the health ministers of states and Union territories virtually, advised them to widely publicise the availability of heterologous precaution dose of Corbevax vaccine. He also urged them to organise vaccination camps at public places such as bus stands, railway stations, airports, schools/colleges, pilgrimage routes and religious sites to increase the uptake of precaution dose among the eligible beneficiaries.

The precaution dose coverage among the 64,89,99,721 eligible population was eight percent till July 14.

On July 15, the government launched a 75-day special drive to administer precaution doses to all aged 18 years and above at government vaccination centres free of cost.

Only 17 per cent - 12,36,03,060 - of the nearly 74.5 crore eligible individuals have been administered precaution dose of COVID-19 vaccines till August 15.

The COVID Vaccination Amrit Mahotsava, aimed at boosting the uptake of precaution doses among the eligible population, is being held as part of the government's Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav to celebrate the 75th anniversary of India's Independence.

States and Union territories were also advised to ensure that all vaccine doses are utilised on the basis of FEFO (first expiry, first out) principle to avoid expiry of the vaccines.

SC: Court must examine whether dying declaration true & reliable

New Delhi: A dying declaration can be the sole basis for recording a conviction and a court is required to examine whether it is true and reliable, the Supreme Court Tuesday said.

The top court also said that a court should also examine whether the dying declaration has been given when the deceased was physically and mentally fit to make the declaration and was not under any tutoring or duress.

In case there are multiple dying declarations and there are inconsistencies between them, the dying declaration recorded by the higher officer like a Magistrate can be relied upon, it said.

The apex court, however,

'Must examine declaration was not made under tutoring or duress'

said this is with the condition that there is no circumstance giving rise to any suspicion about its truthfulness.

A bench of Justices B R Gavai and P S Narasimha made the observations while acquitting a man convicted under Section 304-B (dowry death) of the IPC.

"Court is required to examine as to whether the dying declaration is true and reliable; as to whether it has been recorded by a person at a time when the deceased was fit physically and mentally to make the declaration; as to whether it has been made under any tutoring/duress/prompting.

"The dying declaration can be the sole basis for recording conviction and if it is found reliable and trustworthy, no corroboration is required. In case there are multiple dying declarations and there are inconsistencies between them, the dying declaration recorded by the higher officer like a Magistrate can be relied upon," the bench said.
