Biden to visit Middle East, meet Saudi leader marking policy shift

WASHINGTON

US PRESIDENT Joe Biden will make history next month with a direct flight between Israel and Saudi Arabia where he will meet Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman, abandoning efforts to ostracise the oil kingdom's de facto leader over the murder of a dissident.

The White House ended weeks of speculation on Tuesday, announcing that Biden will travel to Israel, the Palestinian West Bank and Saudi Arabia from July 13-16.

This will be Biden's first trip to the Middle East as president and in addition to meetings with individual leaders in all three places, he will attend a regional Gulf Cooperation Council summit in Saudi Arabia.

There is widespread expectation that Biden hopes to secure a boost in Saudi oil production, in an attempt to tame spiralling fuel costs and inflation at home ahead of midterm congressional elections in which his Democratic party risks a drubbing.

Whatever the outcome, his meeting with the crown prince, often referred to as MBS, will mark a controversial policy shift. As a presidential candidate, Biden said the 2018 murder and dismemberment of Jamal Khashoggi — a Saudiborn US resident known for writing critical articles about Saudi rulers in The Washington Post — had made the coun-

'Recalibration of relations'

Biden's meeting with MBS will mark a controversial policy shift. "We can expect the president to see the crown prince," a US official said, while rejecting the notion that Biden was retreating from his principles. US policy demanded recalibration of relations" after the Khashoggi murder, "not a rupture," the official said. The official pointed out that Saudi Arabia has been a strategic US partner for eight decades and is home to some 70,000 Americans.

try a "pariah."

US intelligence findings released by the Biden administration identified MBS as the mastermind of the operation.

While the White House confirmed that "energy security" will be a topic in Saudi Arabia, officials stressed that the whole trip has broader diplomatic aims. Biden will engage with nearly a dozen leaders during the brief yet intense journey, demonstrating "the return of American leadership," a senior US official told reporters.

The tour starts with meeting Prime Minister Naftali Bennett in Israel, a country Biden first visited nearly 50 years ago as a young senator.

There will be emphasis on the lavish US support for Israel's armed forces. Biden will meet Palestinian president Mahmud Abbas, likely in Bethlehem, the US official said. Biden will stress "his lifelong commitment to a two state solution" for Palestinians and Israelis and restore US ties with Palestinians that were "nearly severed" under Donald Trump. The part of the trip that will make history comes at the end. Biden's flight from Israel to Jeddah will be the first by a US president from Israel to an Arab state that does not recognise the country. In 2017, Trump made the journey in reverse.

Once there, Biden will attend the Gulf Cooperation Council.

A priority for Biden will be maintaining the recently extended truce in Yemen, as well as deterring Iran, advancing human rights, and ensuring global energy, the official said.

Biden will also join a virtual summit of the so-called I2-U2 diplomatic group.

Britons on death row: UK didn't ask for Russia help

Moscow: The Kremlin said on Tuesday that London had not asked Russia to intervene and help save two Britons sentenced to death by pro-Moscow separatist authorities in eastern Ukraine. "They have not asked," Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov said. He said that such a request should be lodged with the authorities of Donetsk.

Kyiv recovers 64 Azovstal fighters' bodies

Kyiv: Ukraine said on Tuesday it had received the bodies of 64 soldiers who died defending Mariupol's steelworks in an exchange with Moscow that saw Ukraine returning the remains of Russian troops. "Ukraine has recovered the bodies of 64 heroic Azovstal defenders for their dignified burial," the Ukrainian reintegration ministry said in a statement issued here.

NATO leaders meet to discuss war

The Hague: NATO Secretary-General Jens Stoltenberg and a small group of leaders from alliance countries are meeting in the Netherlands to discuss Russia's war in Ukraine and to prepare for a summit in Spain later this month. The talks will likely also address applications by Sweden and Finland to join the alliance. AP

RUSSIAN troops control about 80% of the fiercely contested eastern Ukrainian city of Severodonetsk and have destroyed all three bridges leading out of the city but Ukrainian authorities are still trying to evacuate some wounded residents, a regional official said Serhiy Haidai, governor of the eastern Luhansk region, acknowledged that a mass evacuation of civilians from Severodonetsk now is "simply not possible" due to the relentless shelling and fighting in the city Ukrainian forces have been pushed to the industrial outskirts of the city because of "the scorched earth method and heavy artillery the Russians are using," he said.

"There is still an opportunity for the evacuation of the wounded, communication with the Ukrainian military and local residents," he said, adding that Russian forces have not yet blocked off the strategic city.

Azot plant evacuations today: Moscow

The Russian army said it would establish a humanitarian corridor on Wednesday to evacuate hundreds of civilians from the Azot chemical plant in the city of Severodonetsk.

"Guided by the principles of humanity, the Russian armed forces and the formations of the Lugansk People's Republic are ready to organise a humanitarian operation to evacuate civilians," the Russian defence ministry said on Tuesday.

The humanitarian corridor will be in place between 8am (0500 GMT) and 8pm Moscow time on Wednesday, the defence ministry said, adding the evacuees would be transported to the city of Svatovo in the separatist-held region of Lugansk.

Macron appeals for solid parliament majority

FRENCH President Emmanuel Macron appealed to voters on Tuesday to give him a "solid majority" in Sunday's parliamentary polls, warning against adding "French disorder to global disorder."

Speaking as he departed from Paris to visit French troops dispatched to Romania in response to Russia's invasion of Ukraine, Macron said "the months ahead will be difficult" but called for people to back him in the name of "the higher national interest" and "common sense."

Macron's visit this week to Romania and neighbouring Moldova has come under fire at home, landing ahead of the second round of crucial parliamentary elections in which his centrist majority is at risk.

"Emmanuel Macron has planned a trip abroad for three days... after anaesthetising the campaign by refusing any debate, he saw the second round as a done deal," Jean-Luc Melenchon, leader of the left-wing NUPES alliance, told Le Parisien daily.

The incumbent had already been charged by opponents with sitting out April's presidential vote, bringing home a solid but unspectacular win against far-right chief Marine

Appearing to bet on a similar strategy in this month's parliamentary poll, his Ensemble (Together) alliance suffered in Sunday's first round while NU-PES and the far right made gains. Projections suggest voters could hand Ensemble 255-295 seats in the second round uncomfortably low compared with the threshold for an absolute majority of 289. But all sides have struggled to get voters excited about the poll.

Musharraf may be brought back to Pakistan

Lahore: Pakistan's ex-military dictator General Pervez Musharraf, who is in a UAE hospital in a critical condition with no possibility of recovery, may be brought back to the country in an air ambulance as the Army stands by its former chief. Gen. Musharraf, 78, was charged with high treason and given a death sentence in 2019.
