Decoding how PM Modi hacks EVMs, Part 4: How his govt improved lives of women - rural and urban - at home, school and work

Many big economies globally have maternity leave policy of a minimum of 3 months only. So, when my colleagues and friends in global organisations come to know that India has a mandatory 6-month maternity leave policy, they are still pleasantly surprised. As important as this reform is for women in the organised sector (bought of course by the Modi government), there was another scheme by the Modi government that caught my attention – the Pradhan Mantri Matru Vandana Yojana.

The unorganised sector, such as agriculture, for example, has lakhs of women in rural and urban India where they have to work right up to the last days of pregnancy and resume working very soon after childbirth. They typically don't have the luxury of a 6-month paid leave. The nature of the work also takes a toll both on their health and that of the baby. Through the Matru Vandana Yojana, the Modi benefit transfer (DBT) scheme under which "cash benefits are provided to pregnant women in their bank account directly to meet enhanced nutritional needs and partially compensate for wage loss". Coupled with the POSHAN Abhiyaan (that emphasises the nutritional status of adolescent girls, pregnant women, lactating mothers, and children from 0-6 years of age), a holistic support system has been developed for pregnant women & lactating mothers, in the unorganised sector! While nutrition efforts were done earlier too, the direct cash transfer to also compensate for wage loss will bring in mental peace that cannot be quantified. Efforts such as these have improved the Maternal Mortality Rate from 132 per 1 lakh births to 97 per 1 lakh births. Now, you just have to ask yourselves why these women wouldn't press the lotus because certain abnormalities can only be detected after 20 weeks, and therefore gives a medical option to terminate if necessary. While we continue on the topic of pregnancy, did you know that India did not have any law governing Surrogacy? Modi government is the first government to enact a law that lays down rules for both Surrogacy and Assisted Reproduction.

This may not fetch votes yet but lawmaking is the first step to help prevent the exploitation of women (especially for Surrogacy). In the unorganised sector, the participation of women in the workforce is much higher than in the organised sector. making so that they aren't far Women constitute nearly 57% of the popular MNREGA program (Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Takhpatis! An endearing Guarantee Act). An International [´]Labour Organisation study has pointed out how India improved the gender pay gap in MNREGA itself, over the last 8 years. We have already discussed how the Modi government revolutionised MNREGA with excellent high funding. So, in summary, Another conversation with

Now, you increased from 20 weeks to 24 just have to ask yourselves weeks. This is important why these women wouldn't press the lotus button on the EVM! In the unorganised sector, the participation of women in entrepreneurial ventures is also higher than in the organised sector. Nearly 10 crore rural women are part of nearly 1 crore Self Help Groups. However, with Prime Minister Modi, it's never about maintaining the status quo. From the ramparts of the Red Fort on August 15, 2023, he has announced the aim of creating 2 crore lakhpati didis from these groups. While announcing these, the Prime Minister has also spoken about skilling them even in the latest technologies such as drone repairing, and LED bulb off from technology. The concept of the scheme is simple – make these women conversation with one such lakhpati didi gives a great glimpse of why these women feel so comfortable talking to the Prime Minister of India. The rural women have bought into the concept of thinking big and achieving big, and are now fully in tandem with the Prime Minister's vision. more women participate in women diary entrepreneurs have already.

button on the EVM. While we MNREGA; they earn more of Varanasi is another proof of how big a hit he is. Now, you have to ask yourselves why these women wouldn't press the lotus button on the EVM! With so much money coming in, where would the women keep all this money? Gone are the days of hiding money at home, away from the prying eyes of others. The amazing success of the Jan Dhan Scheme means that all these women have their own bank accounts (Out of the total 51.80 crore accounts, 28.75 crore accounts are owned by women!) and therefore access to their own money in the safest manner possible. Rural women are also now able to spend more time working (either as entrepreneurs or employees) because they now have to spend less time worrying about one basic necessity in their house - drinking water. We all have read about and also seen how women have to endure scorching conditions and walk long distances to get drinking water for their home, or we have witnessed the fights that break out at the water tanker that comes to your village. The Jal Jeevan Mission (the slogan is catchy – Har Ghar Nal se Jal) now ensures every house must have a tap and 55 litres of water supply every day. Nearly 12 crore households out of

Better Teeth Mean A Better Quality Of Life

Why Having Good Oral

Health Matters

Taking care of your teeth

also has a significant impact on your overall health. Studies have shown that poor oral health is linked to several chronic health conditions, including heart disease, diabetes, and stroke. In addition, poor oral health can also negatively impact your self-esteem and confidence, making it difficult to smile, speak, and interact with others. Good oral health can even affect how successful you are professionally! People who smile more often are perceived as more competent and trustworthy than those who don't smile often enough. So if you want to make a good impression on potential employers and clients - and improve their perception of your professionalism - make sure that your teeth look great and don't hesitate to show them off. So how can you take

The first step is to establish a daily oral hygiene routine. This includes brushing your teeth twice a day with a fluoride toothpaste, flossing once a day, and using an antiseptic mouthwash to kill bacteria and freshen your breath. It's also important to limit sugary and acidic foods and drinks, which can cause tooth decay and erosion. And as mentioned, another important step is to visit your dentist regularly. A dental professional can examine your teeth and gums, and provide any necessary treatments or recommendations to keep your mouth healthy. They can also help you identify potential problems early on, and take steps to prevent them from becoming more serious. This is important, as treating dental problems before they get worse can save you thousands of dollars in the long run!

In addition to daily oral hygiene and regular visits to the dentist, it's also vital to maintain a healthy diet and lifestyle. Eating a balanced diet that is high in fruits, vegetables, and whole grains, and low in sugar and processed foods, can help keep your teeth and gums healthy. Furthermore, avoiding smoking and alcohol excessive consumption can also help to protect your oral health.

And make sure that you floss! The simple act of flossing may help to reduce the risk of heart disease. This is because flossing helps to remove plaque from your teeth and gums, which can lead to inflammation and gum disease. The inflammation can then cause a buildup of fatty deposits in your arteries, leading to blocked blood flow - and eventually a heart attack or stroke.

In conclusion, taking care of your teeth is an essential part of maintaining overall health and wellness. Not only do healthy teeth allow for proper chewing and digestion, but they also play a crucial role in preventing disease and infection. By establishing a daily oral hygiene routine, visiting the dentist regularly, and maintaining a healthy diet and lifestyle, you can help to keep your teeth, gums, and body healthy for years to
