BANGKOK: Britain's foreign secretary met with Thailand's prime minister on Wednesday on his first visit to the Indo-Pacific region. Britain's foreign office said the discussion between David Cameron and Prime Minister Srettha Thavisin was aimed at improving cooperation in areas including defense, the economy and trade.

China defends new 'harsh' HK law

SLAMS UK, EU FOR CRITICISM

AGENCIES Beijing/Hong Kong

China on Wednesday defended Hong Kong's draconian new national security law that grants the government more power to quash dissent and slammed the US, the UK and the EU for criticising it, saying they should stop interfering in its internal affairs and give up the illusion of continuing its 'colonial influence' in the southern Chinese city.

Hong Kong, a British colony, was handed back to China in 1997 under the principle of "one country, two systems", which guaranteed the city, a major financial hub in Asia, a certain degree of autonomy. While China and Hong Kong both insist this is still the case, critics and international rights groups say Beijing's grip on the city has steadily increased over the years.

Hong Kong's pro-Beijing legislature passed the Safeguarding National Security Bill during a special session on Tuesday.

Article 23 of the new law passed

Members of the Legislative Council sit in the chamber during reading of the Article 23 security law in Hong Kong by the Hong Kong legislature targets new offences like external interference and insurrection, and penalties include life sentences.

The commissioner's office of China's foreign ministry in Hong Kong condemned British Foreign Secretary David Cameron and the Council of the European Union which both hit out at the law after it was unanimously passed in the city's "patriots-only" legislature on Tuesday.

A spokesman for the office said Britain had "no sovereignty, governnance or supervision" over Hong Kong after its return to Chinese sovereignty in 1997, and was not qualified to make irresponsible remarks on the city's affairs.

"Britain continues to stir up trouble and make arbitrary comments on Hong Kong's situation, blatantly trampling on international law and basic norms governing international relations, which is out of its deep-rooted colonial mentality and teacher-like behaviour," the Hong Kong-based South China Morning Post quoted the spokesman as saying. In Beijing, Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesperson Lin Jian referring to the US and Japan's criticism of the law said China deplores and firmly opposes a few countries and institutions smearing and slandering the new legislation.

The legislative council of Hong Kong unanimously adopted the bill to protect the national security and further consolidate the security of Hong Kong's development, he said.

"It is a milestone of the One China Two Systems concepts in the new era and new journey," he claimed.

The new law balances the protection of national security, safeguarding rights and freedom and economic development. Any attacks or attempts to smear the new law will lead to nowhere and are doomed to fail, he said.

China has firmed up its grip further on Hong Kong after the Special Administrative Region's Parliament enacted a tough law, which the local government say is necessary for stability.

Critics fear the new law which expands on the controversial national security law (NSL) imposed by China on the former British colony in 2020 to quell massive protests by local people.

BRI PROJECTS

China's international manhunt to target those involved in graft

AGENCIES / Beijing

China plans to launch an "international manhunt" to target fugitive officials allegedly involved in corruption in the country's ambitious decade-old multi-billion-dollar Belt and Road Initiative (BRI), a media report here said Wednesday.

The Central Commission for Discipline Inspection (CCDI), the ruling Communist Party of China's anti-corruption watchdog, made the call in a meeting on Tuesday with multiple agencies involved in the cross-border corruption hunt, the Hong Kong-based South China Morning Post reported.

"[We] must strengthen the integrity of building the Belt and Road Initiative and reinforce the high-pressure stance against corruption to provide strong support and a firm guarantee for winning the tough and protracted battle against corruption," the CCDI said, the Post reported quoting the party-run People's Daily.

This is the second report in as many months highlighting CCDI's plan to clean up the BRI projects.

Last month, the CCDI's annual report said that fighting corruption related to the BRI will be among the priorities for the CCDI Inspection's work for 2024.

However, there is no clarity on the nature of the crackdown against corruption in the BRI projects stated to be about a USD trillion worth of investments in the last ten years which involved both the Chinese officials, leaders and bureaucrats of the recipient countries.

According to the previous announcement, all cases of disputes related to BRI will be conducted by judicial organs set up in China.

The CCDI plans for an anti-graft campaign in BRI projects especially in small and medium countries come amid allegations of corruption and mismanagement of the high-profile projects which left a number of Asian and African countries in heavy debt traps with massive loans owed China.

Sri Lanka's Hambantota project furthered by then President Mahinda Rajapaksa besides other projects in the countries has become a global concern as China acquired the port for a 99-year lease as a debt swap.

The projects built without due diligence assessments of their viability also resulted in allegations of corruption.

Vietnamese President Vo Van Thuong resigns

Latest top official out amid anti-corruption campaign

AGENCIES Hanoi

Vietnamese President Vo Van Thuong resigned after a little over a year in the job, the Communist Party said Wednesday, making him the latest senior official to leave office amid an intense anti-corruption campaign.

The party approved his resignation, writing in a statement that "violations by Vo Van Thuong have left a bad mark on the reputation of the Communist party," Thuong, 54, became president in March 2023, two months after his predecessor Nguyen Xuan Phuc resigned to take "political responsibility" for corruption scandals during the pandemic. He was the youngest president since modern day Vietnam emerged from war in the mid-1970s.

The announcement came a day before Vietnam's Parliament is set to meet for a special session in Hanoi, which is likely to approve the party's decision.

The position of president in Vietnam is largely ceremonial and ranks third in the country's political hierarchy.

SENEGAL: First woman to run for prez in years is an inspiration for many DAKAR (SENEGAL): Senegal's only female presidential candidate may have little to no chance of winning in Sunday's election, but activists say her presence is helping to advance a decades long campaign to achieve gender equality in the West African nation. "Our country has enormous potential. The natural resources are there, and they can be developed," she told The Associated Press. "The young girls I meet ask for my support. They do so because they know that when a woman comes to power, she will put an end to their suffering. I'm not going to forget them." Few expect Ngom to be among the leading candidates for the presidency, but activists say the fact that a woman has made it to the presidential race for the first time in years reflects how women are moving ahead in the struggle for equality.

'Nepalese youths in Russian army reluctant to return home'

KATHMANDU: Russian Ambassador to Nepal Aleksei Novikov on Wednesday claimed that many Nepalese nationals who reached Russia illegally to join its Army are reluctant to return to their homeland.

During the meeting, Pun expressed concern over the reports of the recruitment of Nepali youths in the Russian Army without a bilateral agreement and requested the Russian government to facilitate the safe return of those Nepali youths recruited in the Russian military forces, according to officials at the Finance Ministry.

At least 19 Nepalese youths have died while serving in the Russian Army while fighting on the side of Russia in the ongoing Russia-Ukraine war.
