SLAMS UK, EU FOR CRITICISM

AGENCIES Beijing/Hong Kong

China on Wednesday defended Hong Kong's draconian new national security law that grants the government more power to quash dissent and slammed the US, the UK and the EU for criticising it, saying they should stop interfering in its internal affairs and give up the illusion of continuing its "colonial influence" in the southern Chinese city. Hong Kong, a British colony, was handed back to China in 1997 under the principle of "one country, two systems", which guaranteed the city, a major financial hub in Asia, a certain degree of autonomy. While China and Hong Kong both insist this is still the case, critics and international rights groups say Beijing's grip on the city has steadily increased over the years.

Hong Kong's pro-Beijing legislature passed the Safeguarding National Security Bill during a special session on Tuesday.

China Morning Post reported.

Members of the Legislative Council sit in the chamber during reading of the Article 23 security law in Hong Kong by the Hong Kong legislature targets new offences like external interference and insurrection, and penalties include life sentences.

The commissioner's office of China's foreign ministry in Hong Kong condemned British Foreign Secretary David Cameron and the Council of the European Union which both hit out at the law after it was unanimously passed in the city's "patriots-only" legislature on Tuesday.

A spokesman for the office said Britain had "no sovereignty, governance or supervision" over Hong Kong after its return to Chinese sovereignty in 1997, and was not qualified to make irresponsible remarks on the city's affairs.

"Britain continues to stir up trouble and make arbitrary comments on Hong Kong's situation, blatantly trampling on international law and basic norms governing international relations, which is out of its deeprooted colonial mentality and teacher-like behaviour," the Hong Kong-based South China Morning Post quoted the spokesman as saying.
In Beijing, Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesperson Lin Jian referring to the US and Japan's criticism of the law said China deplores and firmly opposes a few countries and institutions smearing and slandering the new legislation. The legislative council of Hong Kong unanimously adopted the bill to protect the national security and Hong Kong's development, he said. "It is a milestone of the One China Two Systems concepts in the new further consolidate the security of era and new journey," he claimed. The new law balances the protection of national security, safeguarding rights and freedom and economic development. Any attacks or attempts to smear the new law will lead to nowhere and are doomed to fail, he said. China has firmed up its grip further on Hong Kong after the Special Administrative Region's Parliament enacted a tough law, which the local government say is necessary for stability.

Critics fear the new law which expands on the controversial national security law (NSL) imposed by China on the former British colony in 2020 to quell massive protests by local people.

'Nepalese youths in Russian army reluctant to return home'

Ambassador to Nepal Novikov Wednesday claimed that many Nepalese nationals who reached Russia illegally to join its Army are reluctant to return to their homeland.

During the meeting, Pun expressed concern over the reports of the recruitment of Nepali youths in the Russian Army without a bilateral agreement and requested the Russian government to facilitate the safe return of those Nepali youths recruited in the Russian military forces, according to officials at the Finance Ministry.

At least 19 Nepalese youths have died while
